> MR Becher returned on the 24th ult from Pahang. On this occasion he particularly noted the district of Kuantan, and we understand that he has formed a favorable opinion of the richness and prospective importance of the district; as one in which tin mining will find a comparatively permanent and from all appearances, profitable scope. The lodes, he says, are undeniable realities of considerable size. and proved extent. Development is being rapidly carried on, and in due course the good results, Mr Becher believes, will prove to the public, scientific, commercial, and speculative, that the solid wealth of Pahang is no fiction .- Straits Times.

The Ko Lai was the ceremony at which cakes were presented to our family and the deeds of marriage were given. I went to sented, we believe, to all through passengers my husband's house on the 30th. The Ko Lai took place on the 18th. On the 30th I was put into the marriage thair, and accompanied with music, was carried from my family house to We Yin Fong, to my husband's house. There was a procession is not necessarily a procession with music. The chair I was carried in had gilding and red cloth on it. She came down from Canton and came to my house inquiring after Lai Ming Shon, my husband. I asked her what was the matter, and sent my servant for my husband. I inquired of my husband who she was and he said the woman was his friend. She passed a night in my house, but during the night I found there was something wrong which I can't explain now. I turned her out next morning. I pressed my husband next day to tell me who she was, and he said that she was formerly a widow and as there was nebody to take care of herhe supported her. I regarded her as his paramour, not bis concubine. The second time I saw her was during the sixth moon gapore on the 26th April, and may be to turn out good work in reproducing plans of last year when my hosband was ill and I band died there in September last. I went to the house and got the pedigree written on a piece of paper, which I gave to Lam Akau. What I mean by pact, 'co is the year, month, day, and hour of her birth. It is called Nin Sang and it is taken to the temple for the Joss to decide whether the dates agree with those of the proposed husband. Lam Akau said his every otherday; the value of land has risen master was satisfied with the Nin Sang and in about a couple of months would make some small presents including a gold hairpin and $20 betrothal money. These things were hears made on all sides, and they are made sent. There was an exchange of presents The plaintiff's people sent some cakes to rival the most progressive cities of America in this case. The ceremony was the oustomary one on the marriage of a first wife. No man could marry two number one wives. A man can only have one legitimate wife: I never heard of any man who went through the same coremony with a second wife while his first was alive. I as go-between headed the marriage procession. I got presents from both sides. Lam Akau was not a go-between, he acted as a rmaner. I am not a professional go between, but engage in that occasional

ly. I don't know if there are professional go-betweens. Dr .E. J. Eitel, H. M. Inspector Schools, said-I was enrolled about three years ago as sworm interpreter to the Suprema Court. I have been 26 years in Hongkong and neighbourhood. I have been studying Chinese and Chinese mannors and customs during that time. I have givon attention to Chinese marriage customs and the Chinese law of inheritance from Chinese books on the subject, not as a lawyer but as a scholar. I have had an opportunity of inspecting the documents produced so far as they so they seem to be the usual form of documents relating to marriage. One of the documents marked 'D' is a document in which Lai Ming Shun presents his compliments to Li Chun Sau and states that he screes to the proposed marriage with Li Chun Sau's daughter. The document 'F' is the actual marriage covenant. Those are the documents that would have to be returned in the case of a divorce. The usual custom when a marriage is proposed is to exchange small presents, as an earnest of bona Then there is an exchange of horoscopes. The carrying of the described is looked upon as announcing to all the world that the marriage is that of a legitimate first wife, and the custom is so strong that even in Hongkong no man would dare to use such a chair for a second wife. To do so is illegal in China. The red draped chair and the music are necessary parts of the marriage of the first wife or Kit Fat. The position of the Kit Fat is that the secondary wives are her servants and could legally be sold in China. The Kit Fat could not be sold. The Kit Fat, if the husband is the head of the family, takes that position on the decease of the husband and would have the administration of his estate. If an older member of the family of the bridegroom were alive at the time of the marriage his presence at the caremony would also be expected at the representative of the family. Chinese living here still hold themselves subject to Chinese customs socially. A Kit Fat leaves her own family for good on her marriage and henceforth belongs to her husband's family. On the death of her husband she would have a claim on the head of the family for maintenance even if she had no children. His Lordship at this stage said he would adjourn the case till to-morrow. There were two or three points he should like to be informed upon. He should like to know whether there was any provision for the recognition of Chinese customs in this Mr Robinson said he believed there was an early proclamation with reference to law, any early ordinance or proclamation, the question of domicile might become perfectly immaterial. The case was then adjourned till 10.30 to-morrow.

TIBETAN EXPLORATION.

Nows prrived here this week, says the Chinese Times of 20th April, from Mr W. W. Rockbill, late Secretary of the American Legation in Peking, who returned to China last autumn and started from this place on an exploring expedition to the little known regions of Kokonor, lying between Western China and Anterior Tibet, and occupied by the Tangut and Pa other tribes of mixed Mongol and Tibetan

Mr Rockhill, whi'e attached to the Legation, studied the language and customs of the Tibetans with the help of native lamas ; and he is now carrying out a long-cherished. plan to parsue ethnological studies amougst the tribes of Kokonor, more especially the Lhaza, the capital of Tibet. As a precaution to ensure success Mr Rockhill wears the lama dress and travels under the protection of friendly priests with native caravans; he took but one servant, . Tientsin man, and literally 'lives on the country,' as he would not encumber himself and attract attention with foreign provisions or atensils. Mr Rockhill writes from the famous

THE CHINA REVIEW. COBLISHED BI-MONTHLY. TENTH YEAR.

THIS Review, which was intended to meet the wants of many students of Chinese caused by the discontinuance of ' Notes and Queries on China and Japan, 'has reached its Fourteenth Volume. The Review discusses those topics which are uppermost in the minds of students of the 'Far East' and about which every intelligent person connected with China or Japan is desirous of acquiring trustworthy information. It includes many interesting Notes and original Papers on the Arfa, Sciences, Ethnology, Folklore, Geography, History, Literature, Mythology, Natural History, Antiquities, and Social Manners and Customs, etc., etc., of China, Japan, Mongolia, Tibot, and the Far East generally. Recently a new de-parture has been taken, and the Review now gives papers on Trade, Commerce, and Descriptive notes of Travel by well-known writers. It was thought that by extending the scope of the Review in this direction,

The Review department receives special attention, and endeavours are made to present a careful and concise record of Literature on China etc., and to give critiques embodying sketches of the Most recent works on such topics. Authors and Publishers are requested to forward works to Editor, China Review, care of China Mail Office.

the Magazine would be mademore generally

The Notes and Queries are still continued and form an important means of obtaining from and diffusing among students know. ledge on obscure points. The Correspondents column also affords change of views and discussion of various Af Original contributions in Chinese, Latin, or any of the Modern Languages are received. The papers are contributed by the At members of the various Consular, the Imperial Customs, and Hongkong Services, Ca and also by the Missionary hodics amongst whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is assiduously cultivated. Amongst the regular contributors are Drs. Chalmers, Eitel, Bretschneider, and Hirth, Professor Legge, and Messrs Balfour, Watters, Stent, Phillips, MacIntyre, Groot, Jamieson, Faber, Kepsch, Parker, Playfair, Giles, Piton, and Taylor, -all well-known names, indicative of sound scholarship and thorough mastery of their subject. The Subscription is fixed at $6.50 per annum, posture included payable in ad-Orders for binding columes will be Address Manspromptly ettended to: an Ithing Mail Office.
